GBANDMA'S LIFTER.

DEAR DAUGHTERS:

At your earnest solicitation in your last letter that I do our shopping at the Cash Store of G. W. Weaver & Son, Gettysburg, I persuaded Father to take me there. He, also, was prejudiced and said, "our old stores are good enough; this new Cash Store does so much blowing through the newspapers, and I don't suppose they can sell goods any cheaper than any one else;" but after going around town we went there finally and were both surprised at the enormous stock and convinced of the very low prices given on everything we saw, which was explained to us by the salesman: "that a lively business at a short profit is to be preferred to a slow business at a long profit." As you asked me to write and tell you about wint I saw there, I find that would be impossible to do, because I saw so much; piles of all sorts of goods, but as I went in to see about Blankets, Flannels and Underwear more particularly, I will try and tell you what I remember about them. Red Twill Flannels are astonishingly cheap there, although was assu ed that the prices had advanced at the mills, and that the low figures they gave was the result of early purchases, and was convinced of the fact by the prices asked at other stores. Unless I tell you some prices you will not know anything about them. saw such a variety of qualities I may forget some. I saw a good one at 20 cents a yard, an elegant one at 25 cents, a splendid thing for skin 7; some heavier at 28, 30, 33 and 35 cents. Real Cochineal dye (I know it by the shade) at 40 cents, and same dye, weighing 5 ounces to the yard, at 45 cents. I paid 50 and 60 cents for these same goods last year when father and I both had a spell of rheumatism, and, thanks to the Flannel, we have never had it since we wear it.

I also saw plain Red Flannels, in all qualities, from 20 to 40 cents, but, as I did not need any, I did not pay particular attention to them, but in White Flannels I bought some very pretty and fine, with good weight, two qualities you seldom find combined in All-Wool Flannels. I also got some beautiful heavy soft Shaker Flannels for underskirts for the girls, heavy as home-made, and much softer and cheaper. I saw some beautiful unshrinkable goods at 20 and 25 cents. I truly was asto ished. Grey Twill Flannel, in any quality you could possibly want. I bought some beautiful Blue Twill Flannel, for some shirts for John, at 35 cents. I really think it is as good as I paid 50 cents for last year. They had some still lower priced. but I considered it cheaper to buy the good for that I think I was more surprised at the assortment and prices of Underwear than anything else I saw. Mary's children needed new under ear all around, and, as has been my custom, I had to do the buying for them. I saw all the sizes in three qualities. The first I looked at started at 15 cents and advanced five cents for every four inches in size. These goods are very fine for the price and nicely finished, but nearly all cotton. The middle quality is what I got for them. They are half wool, nicely finished, and nice weight; the price started at 25 cents for No. 16 and raised five cents for every four inches, and are better than what I bought at a considerably higher price last year. I also got the Pantalets for them too this year, as they are so much nicer than those I use to make out of Canton Flannel, and, by the way, I advise you to get them for yourselves as well as for the children, as they fit closer and are so much warmer than the homemade ones. The third quali y is as soft as lambs' wool, with just enough cotton in them to keep them from shrinking, but not as heavy as those I bought, and a little higher priced. I got some red underwear for Blanche (the Doctor said she must wear red this Winter) at $1.00 a piece, just as soft and fleecy as what I saw last year at $1.30. I also saw some at a little higher price, but considered what I bought the better value. The vests and drawers I got for Ellenore and Edith at $1.00 are really the softest, fleeciest and best finished I ever saw at that price. I was a little undecided between the 75-cent quality and what I got because of their superior weight, but then the, have less wool, and the girls want warmth without weight, and are very much pleased with what I got. I saw some at 50 cents, same as those you bought last year at 75 cents. I also some at 40 cents and some as low as 25. I got John's red underwear ready-made, too, as it is much cheaper than to have it made, and sewing goes too hard with me to mate them. I got him the Cochineal dye, at $1.00 a piece. I really was asked $1.50 last year for goods not any better. I saw some finer ones, too, but he thinks if they are not heavy they are not warm, and he is about right. The new Camel's Hair Underwear, for any one wanting fine colored, without wishing red, is beautiful and very soft. Their 50-cent white shirts and drawers are like those I bought last year for Frank at 75 cents. I never saw anything nicer in men's white underwear than I saw there, and such an assortment of prices, too, from 25, 35, 50, 75 $1.00, up to $2.25, and all sizes at each price. The next thing I wanted to look at was Blankets. I saw so many that at first I didn't really think they would ever be able to sell them all, but when I heard the prices I felt sure they could sell any number of them, if they can get any more to sell at these prices, which the salesman told me they were unable to do, as the prices had already advanced at the mills. My letter will be too long if I tell you anything about the prices, but I just told Father that we had better sell our wool and buy them, as we must pay as much to have them made, and besides our factory cannot give them that fleecy finish, so much desired, that their Blankets have. You will no doubt think that your old mother is entirely too enthusiastic on this Cash Store, but everything that Edith and you and the newspapers have told me I found true, and the "half has not been told." It certainly will pay you to go there for everything you went, even if you do have a long distance to go, as their efforts to make Dry Goods cheap for Adams county ought to be and is appreciated, judging by the business they were doing the day we were in. Edith is going down soon for her Winter's outfit and she will tell you all about dresses and wraps. Be sure and dress yourselves and little ones warm this Winter and buy your woolens early at the Cash Store, as the prices cannot possibly remain as low as they are now. We all send love to you all. Give the children a kiss for their GRANDMOTHER BROWN.
